By then stopping after each half verse he gains a firm footing in the airy region, (and by stopping) after each pada, (he gains a firm footing) in this world (again). After having thus reached the celestial world, the sacrificers obtain thus a footing (again) in this world.²¹

For those who aspire only after (a footing) in one (world), that is, after heaven, the Hotar ought to repeat (the Dûrohaṇam) without making the descent (in the way described, by stopping first after three padas, &c.) They (thus) conquer only the celestial world, but they cannot stay long, as it were, in this world.

Hymns in the Trishtubh and Jagatî metre are mixed to represent a pair. For cattle are a pair; metres are cattle. (This is done) for obtaining cattle.

(To what the Vishuvan day is like. Whether or not the Shastras of the Vishuvan day are to be repeated on other days during the Sattrā also. On the merit of performing the Vishuvan day. On this day an ox is to be immolated for Vis'vakarma.)

The Vishuvan day is like a man. Its first half is like the right half (of a man) and its latter half like the left half. This is the reason that it (the perform-

²¹ One has to bear in mind that the sacrificer does not wish to reside permanently in heaven before the expiration of his full life-term, viz. one hundred years. But by means of certain sacrifices he can secure for himself even when still alive lodgings in heaven, to be taken up by him after death. He must already when alive mystically ascend to heaven, to gain a footing there, and to be registered as a future inhabitant of the celestial world. After having accomplished his end, he descends again to the earth. His ascent and descent is dramatically represented by the peculiar way in which the Dûrohaṇa mantra is repeated.
